

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Florida Bar Foundation wishes to acknowledge the contributions of time, effort and expertise made by many individuals, and organizations to the development and writing of this manual. Many of these same persons and organizations also provided invaluable assistance in the annual disaster training conferences

As consultants to the Foundation, Terry Coble, formerly disaster project manager for Legal Services of Greater Miami after Hurricane Andrew, and Alice Nelson, formerly Executive Director of Southern Legal Counsel, played the critical role of initially developing and pulling together the manual. They also contributed several sections of the manual, with Terry and Alice working together on the sections on program disaster plans, the chronological disaster timeline of tasks and the list of federal and state contacts (updated by Cindy Huddleston, staff attorney of Florida Legal Services, for the 2006 version of the Manual) and Terry writing the sections on legal representation of clients regarding FEMA matters. The Foundation has been fortunate to have the continued consultative services of Terry Coble for the updating and expansion of the Manual for 2007, including the contribution of a new section on disaster recovery issues for mobile home residents by Lisa Carmona, staff attorney with the Florida Equal Justice Center.

Florida's Pro Bono Coordinators' Association and the Young Lawyers Division of The Florida Bar were the driving forces behind the section on utilization of pro bono resources. We especially wish to thank Rob Johnson, Executive Director of Brevard County Legal Aid for the writing of this section.

J.R. Phelps, Director of The Florida Bar's Law Office Management Assistance Service, provided valuable assistance to the section on program disaster plans.

Charles Elsesser, staff attorney with Florida Legal Services, contributed leadership and guidance to the overall development of the manual. Further, Chuck provided his invaluable expertise in writing about long term effects of hurricane disasters on the availability of affordable housing in the long term recovery section.

We wish to acknowledge and thank Richard Benrubi, of the law firm of Luggio, Benrubi, & Williams, P.A., in West Palm Beach, Florida for his important pro bono contribution, the writing of the section, A Primer for Handling Homeowners' Insurance Claims in Florida.

Terry Coble contributed and Deborah Schroth, staff attorney of Florida Legal Services, reviewed the section on Education Rights of Children.

Lisa Carmona of Florida Equal Justice Center and lead attorney for the Southeast Florida Hurricane Wilma Collaborative, Christine Larson, Deputy Director of Florida Rural Legal Services and Michelle Trunkett of Florida Rural Legal Services contributed the manual section on Landlord/Tenant Issues.

April Charney, consumer attorney for Jacksonville Area Legal Aid, contributed the section on Home Repair/Solicitation, which was carefully edited and supplemented by Alice Vickers, staff attorney of Florida Legal Services.

Sample brochures and flyers were contributed by several programs, including Legal Services of North Florida and Florida Rural Legal Services. We particularly wish to recognize the assistance of Kristine Knab, Executive Director of Legal Services of North Florida and Christine Larson of Florida Rural Legal Services. Terry Coble produced the flyer regarding FEMA benefits and edited the flyers regarding Food Stamps, Disaster Unemployment Assistance and tenant's rights. Cindy Huddleston provided updated information for the 2006 manual versions. We also wish to thank Florida Immigrant Advocacy Center for providing the Creole and Spanish translations of the flyers for the 2006 manual.

Andrea Horne, Grants Coordinator for The Florida Bar Foundation, prepared the manual for publication and deciphered and organized a wealth of material from different sources and in different forms. Thanks, Andrea.

Many others provided guidance, support and expertise to the development and writing of this manual, and to the training provided on the manual. We particularly want to thank Kent Spuhler, Executive Director of Florida Legal Services, for his guidance and leadership regarding disaster legal assistance.
